PURPOSE

By Edgar A. Guset

I sit and look at life all day and wonder what it's all about
I see men hurry down the way and try to figure the reason out
And I know that here on earth in the mornng sun and the evening gloam
Man's greatest chance to prove his worth abides in the place he calls home.

Oh, why do they hurry and why do they toil, why fret and worry and fight and despair?
For a few gay flowers in a patch of soil, a new red rug and a big arm chair,
For steel blue smoke from a chimney flue, and some shining bulbs in a crystal dome
All the work of the bustling world men do, for the peace and joy of the place called home.

A blazing fire and a shelf of books; some curtains white at the window panes,
For the dreams of lovers in cozy nooks, a roof o'er head through the autumn rains,
For the fragrant scent of the evening meal—'tis for these men battle and toil and roam
For the only joy on the earth that's real—is the peace and charm of the place called home.

* * *

It seems almost too good to be true, and yet according to a noted New York University professor—"every man with sufficient imagination, carries within himself his own fountain of youth." Or, in other words, youth continues as long as the individual retains his desire for new experiences. Youth is a state of mind, not measured by years but by the quality of imagination.

* * *

Youth means temperamental predominance of courage over timidity, the thirst for adventure over the life of ease. This often exists in a man of 50 more than in a boy of 20.

* * *

Nobody grows old by merely living a number of years. People grow old by deserting their ideals.

* * *

Living the treadmill life is what makes us grow old. When we get to the point on the Road of Life when we no longer greet each new day with enthusiasm and a spirit of adventure; when we arrive at the stage when we are annoyed at any disruption to our daily mode of living and resent any change in our daily routine, then we may know that we really are beginning to get old.

* * *

Life is a journey from birth to death.

* * *

You may think you are standing still but you're not. You're either climbing upward, and have your eyes on the peaks of the lofty mountains ahead, or—you're content to roam the valleys and take the way of the least resistance.

* * *

Take Old Mother Nature for instance. Every flower ,plant and tree is continually growing and developing. As soon as it stops, decay immediately starts in.

* * *

So it is with us human beings. As long as we continue to grow mentally, and have our ideals, life proves to be interesting. The moment we begin to live in the past; when we cease to have interest in the present and future, nature also loses patience with us, and old age starts to creep upon us.

* * *

I like to think of life as a preparatory school. A place where we are all offered the opportunity to learn the lesson of eliminating all negative traits of character. And I believe that we stand a pretty poor show of being promoted to a higher plane of happiness—when the time comes for us to pass on—unless we have been successful in passing our tests and have succeeded in eliminating these undesirable traits from our heart. I do not believe that there are any short-cuts, nor any possibility of evading the necessity of learning such a lesson.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRL'S ESSAY SHOWS VISION

Lays Out Program for Development of Town Worthy of Careful Investigation by All Civic Organizations

Would that we had more girls in our town like Anna Zorich; would that we had many, many adults in the town with vision for development along the lines in an essay recently completed.

Anna Zorich, a student at the Meadow Lake Union High School daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Zorich who conduct the Goodfellow's Cafe recently entered the contest put on by the local Lions Club, for the best essay—"If I Were A Lion What I Would Want My Lions Club To Do For My Community." Her essay—printed below—is one of the finest and most constructive essays of its kind which has come into the office of the Truckee Republican. Clear and concisely, Miss Zorich tells of the successful town; a town any one might well be proud to live in.

IF A WERE A LION WHAT I WOULD WANT MY LIONS CLUB TO DO FOR OUR COMMUNITY

By Anna Zorich, Meadow Lake Union High School, Truckee, Calif.

As recreation and health are two of the most important things we must have in order to live happily I would suggest improvements in this line first.

Every town should have a community hall with a gymnasium, a small library and reading room. The gym could also be used for dramatic performances and social functions. The boys and girls could gather there in the evenings and enjoy themselves in some organized activities or under supervision. This would certainly offer much more pleasure to young men and women who have nothing to do after their work is done. It would also bring the people out of their homes to make new friendships and renew old.

Perhaps a tennis court could be built and a swimming club organized. These two sports are exceedingly good for both growing adolescents and adults. They not only afford excellent oudoor exercise but are things which everyone should know how to do. Therefore, give us a chance!

Beautifying the town is another important project. Before it can be made attractive, it must be clean. The sides of the roads and empty lots should be cleared of their rubbish and old shacks torn down. When this is accomplished, the artistic side can be considered. Well kept yards with grass, flowers and shrubs gracing well painted house exteriors would make a vast improvement. The outskirts of the town should be pleasing to the approaching tourists so they will not hesitate in deciding to stop. Appropriate ways of beautifyng the entrances to the town should be carefully considered; perhaps "Welcome" signs add a great deal. The impression made upon the stranger is of paramount importance as far as business men are concerned.

Sidewalks along the streets would make a more orderly appearance. It would not only be easier on the feet than walking on rocks, but by keeping people off the highway and streets would add to the safety of both pedestrian and motorists.

So, come on Lions, let us make our town one never to be forgotten, a more healthful and dynamic force in shaping the lives of our young, and a happier and more artistic place for all.

PONY EXPRESS CAVALCADE DUE HERE TONIGHT

Making the Trip Overland to Chicago to Represent California at Century of Progress Exposition

The Pony Express, 1933 style, which left San Francisco April 24 for a 2300 mile ride on horseback to the Century of Progress Exposition at Chicago, wil be the guests of the City of Truckee on Thursday night, May 4th. The 12 intrepid riders who make up this romantic cavalcade are sons and daughters of Early California pioneers. They will represent the State of California and the traditions of the old west at the exposition where they will be guests of honor of the Fair on California Day, July 7th.

The riders will act as good will messengers from the people of the West to the people of Illinois. They will carry as their precious cargo mail from California and Nevada citizens to their friends across the mountains, a scroll of greeting from Governor James Rolph, Jr., and official messages from the mayors of cities along the Pony Express route.

The state's most accomplished horsemen and women, equally as fine saddlemasters as the men and women who made history in the sixties, will make the ride. Among them will be Boler Rucker, 1932 winner of the California Trophy at Salinas, the most coveted amateur horseman's prize that exists, Captain Douglas Hertz, one of the South's finest polo players and secretary of the Hollywood Polo Club, Peggy Baker, three times International Cowgirl Champion, Rope Edwards of Rodeo fame, the three Van sisters, Tillie, Florence and Alice, age 13, 15 and 17, who are the undisputed juvenile trick riding champions of the world. It is truly a Cavalcade worthy to represent a West that has long been famed for its horses and its riders.

THANKS

I desire to express my thanks to my friends for the support they so generously gave me at the recent election and to assure them that I will continue to carry on the work as Director of the Utility District to the best of my ability and with the best interests of the people of the District at heart.

TAHOE ROAD CLOSED BY COURT ORDER

"Court Action Known to the Supervisors Before Suit Was Instituted," Says Southern Pacific President

According to President A. D. McDonald, of the Southern Pacific Company, closing the subway entrance to the country road between Truckee and the Lake Tahoe region, is a matter that has been under consideration for a long time, and the action taken was not in any sense hasty or arbitrary. In fact, the Nevada County supervisors knew all about the matter, and knew when the court action and suit was instituted.

It is decidedly unfortunate for the citizens of Truckee that they have not got a supervisor who is sufficiently interested in the affairs of this section of the county, to keep them posted on what is going on at the county seat.

The closing of the Truckee-Lake Tahoe region county road, which has been in use for over 80 years, is a serious affair. Supervisor Alex Robertson certainly should have notified the people of Truckee of the court action and suit instituted by the Southern Pacific Company, and he should have done all within his power to see that the people of this district were protected and the county road kept open.

The spirit of utter indifference which Supervisor Alex Robertson is showing towards the local townspeople is most discouraging in view of the strong support which he received from the voters of Truckee at the last election which made his election possible.

Mr. Robertson owes it to the town to visit the local chamber of commerce from time to time and tell the citizens just what is going on at the Nevada County seat. That is part of his job which his salary covers.

President McDonald's letter to the editor of the Truckee Republican reads as follows:

Mr. Stanley Bavier, Editor-Publisher,
The Truckee Republican,
Truckee, California
Dear Mr. Bavier:

Following the receipt of your letter of April 14th have reviewed with our officers the question of closing the subway entrance to the county road between Truckee and the Lake Tahoe region and find that the matter has been under consideration for a long time and the action on our part was not in any sense hasty or arbitrary.

You may recall that for some time we have endeavored to have the County Supervisors sign an easement covering the use of this roadway, and, when they failed to do so, it was necessary in order to properly safeguard our interests to have the matter definitely settled by court action, and this procedure was, of course, known to the Supervisors before suit was instituted. It was only after the Court decided in our favor that the fence was erected.

Yours truly,
A. D. McDONALD

Chamber of Commerce Out To Protect The Truckee Merchants

Will Cover All Peddlers, Venders, and Those Who Solicit Retail Business and Have No Regular Established Place of Business

The Truckee Chamber of Commerce has petitioned Nevada County District Attorney W. E. Wright to draft a county ordinance to present to the Nevada County board of supervisors, whereby all peddlers, venders and others who solicit retail business in the county, and who have no established place of business in the county, will have to pay a fee of $5.00 per day. The ordinance will also make it compulsory for any street fair, circus or carnival to pay a fee of $25 per day, plus $5 per day on each and every booth or concession where goods are sold, bartered or given in chance.

Local representatves of the chamber of commerce have conferred wth both the Mayor of Grass Valley and the county district attorney regarding the proposed ordinance and both have stated that they would be glad to cooperate with the Truckee Chamber of Commerce as soon as the ordinance had been drafted for presenation to the board of supervisors.

The local merchants have been disturbed for some time over the number of peddlers who are coming into the town and securing business which should be given to the Truckee business establishments. These peddlers and venders pay no taxes in the county, nor do they assist in any way with the development of the community. They neither assist in supporting the public schools, churches and other public institutions, nor do they employ local labor. As a matter of fact these peddlers are parasites which secure a living at the local merchants and taxpayers' expense They take money out of local circulation which the town or county can ill offord to loose.

The new ordinance is very much in order, and should be passed and placed in effect as soon as possible.

SMILES

In San Francisco recently every street car carried the slogan, "A smile speaks all languages."

That is a text that applies to every line of business and social endeavor. It is particularly appropriate at a time when business is emerging from depressed conditions, to fight a battle with sluggishness and apathy.

There is immediate response to a smile. Barriers are removed when the evidence of kindliness appears, and there is an attractiveness about a pleasant face that wins in business and society.

Try it today, and prove it for yourself.

MOTHERS' DAY

Once more we are on the eve of Mothers' Day—that day, the second Sunday in May each year, set aside by a resolution of Congress "for the expression of our love and reverence for the mothers of our country."

Far be it from us to discourage the observance of Mothers' Day by such little attentions as sending flowers, candy, telegrams and letters—but we would plead rather for the kind of thoughtfulness which prompts children to think of the mother every day in the year—and not merely just on the second Sunday in May.

Personally, we take little stock in the elaborate propaganda which is designed to stimulate the sale of flowers by wire and telegrams of congratulation. As a matter of fact we resent such commercialism being carried on in the sacred name of "mother" whether it is one day of the year or another.

Our idea of devotion to the mothers of the world run along in an entirely different direction; that of the sons and daughters who are thoughtful of their mother each and every day in the year. Who are forever striving to bring honor to her name; who are continually thinking of her comfort, and seeking ways and means to repay her for the tender love which has been bestowed all thru the years.

Frankly, it is not the sons and daughters who wear a flower for their mother on Mothers' Day which we admire; it is the sons and daughters who are always mindful of the duty which they owe their mother each and every day whom we esteem.

Children who neglect their mothers all the rest of the year, and have to be moved out of their indifference by an emotional appeal to honor their mother one day in the year are not the type of children we would recognize as being worthwhile.

And while we are on the subject, we ask you to not forget the hundreds of widowed mothers and orphaned children who are today praying not for flowers but for food to eat; not for candy but for the bare necessities of life.

A PUBLIC ENEMY

The resolution recently introduced in Washington by United States Representative Dies of Texas, for a congressional investigation into "the lobbying activities of Ogden Mills, former Secretary of the Treasury, for seeking to defeat the program of President Roosevelt" is to be commended.

Ogden Mills has long been the "fly in the ointment" of the American people. His record is decidedly against him. He is neither consistent, tolerant or fair minded. His Americanism can well be challenged.

Californians will well remember Mill's speeches made in San Francisco last Fall on behalf of Herbert Hoover, as being the most absurd and irrational utterances made during the entire campaign.

Mills should be thoroughly chastised for his misdemeanor without delay. For a man who formerly held the portfolio of Secretary of the Treasury to deliberately attempt to block the emergency legislative program of the president, is a breach of good Americanism which is absolutely unforgivable.

PRESENT TRENDS

Three tendencies are very strong just now in our public and business life.

The first is federalization. Power, political and economic, flows to the national government. Pennsylvania Avenue dwarfs Main Street; Washington towers over New York. We used to call this paternalism.

The second is what political economists call state capitalism. We are not going socialistic. We remain capitalistic. But the State—or as we usually say in this country, the government—takes more control of our capitalistic system, dominating finance and increasing its grip on industry and commerce.

The third is social responsibility. We become more socially conscious, thinking of our nation as an organic whole—not merely as groups or individuals. We treat our city, state and national population as one. Our government takes this view, and our people uphold it, to an extent that would have been impossible before 1929.

Here is a revolution in our thought and action. It is a peaceful and natural revolution, but of great scope and power. We hardly recognize ourselves and our attitudes when we take full note of present trends. But we go along with the current, because there is nothing else to do, driven by economic pressure. And we may never get back to the old individualistic, go-as-you-please plan.

HOME, CHURCH AND SCHOOL

A federal judge in Philadelphia recently gave some good advice to a group of naturalized citizens who had just attained that status.

"Watch your children and give them good examples," he said. "Support your churches, no matter what their denomination. Go often to see the teachers of your children and thank them for the work they are doing for them."

In the recent, unlamented boom days, children were supposed to be pretty wild. Much was heard of "flaming youth." Parents, however, were largely to blame because the "good example" had rather gone out of fashion. The schools were supposed to do all that was done about training for character, as well as imparting education. Parents were too busy with their own interests to co-operate much with the school.

Times have been changing rapidly. Ideas similar to those of the Judge's Americanization talk are becoming more common. Native-born parents need to adopt them as much as do the newly-naturalized citizens. Home, church and school must work together for community welfare. None of them can perform alone the task of advancing civilization.

BUDGETING LIVES

According to a book by Walter B. Pitkin, "Life Begins at Forty." Agreeing with this thesis, a philosophic Jewish Rabbi observes that the art of living depends on the wise use of time.

"The average American," he says, "does not live long or happily, because he carries over into the middle years the turbulent tempo of youth. Life does begin at forty for those who have learned to budget their lives sparingly and to select their satisfactions carefully."

The twenties and thirties, with their energy and emotion, he holds, are merely foundation years.

"We live to learn," said Lord Byron, "yet slowly learn to live." With new leisure that is coming for the latter part of life, in which people may either play or engage in activities long denied them, there is more reason than ever for taking the long view and planning far ahead.

WOMEN'S PRISON

It will be "all work and no play" for flapper bandits, hammer murderesses and other women who find their way into the new state prison for women at Tehachapi.

Mrs. Ernest Wallace, chairman of the board of trustees, says each inmate will be given a full day's work of 8 hours. There is sufficient farm land about the prison to give plenty of outdoor work, such as gardening, poultry raising, truck farming, etc., she says.

The new institution should provide valuable therapeutic treatment. But it might not be a bad idea to erect a high wire fence about the prison, as recommended by penologists.

Even women prisoners are known to get the "wanderlust." And if they should, an open gate and an open prairie might prove to be too much of a temptation.

The Incredible Green of Tahiti

It is late afternoon when we reach Tahiti, and I tremble with excitement at the first sight of it, as something which I could never have imagined. I had thought Martinique green, as I once thought Ireland green, but they are drab in comparison with this. It seems, indeed, as though there were no other color in the world which could ever again matter in the slightest degree; as though one did not only see it, but was shot through and through with it, permeated with it; so that one's every thought was green, reflecting the glitter of the shining, opaque, enamel-like leaves which cast back the light like mirrors, of the fine transparent leaves, the fern like foliage. I am old enough now to have schooled myself not to expect much, but I could never have expected any thing like this, excelling all expectation, full in the blaze of the late afternoon sun.

One end of the island runs up from the sea in a sharp wedge and then come mountains; mountain upon mountain, rocky, grey-blue, purple blue, indigo, and a blue which is close upon black, peaked and jagged like a scroll of music with more faraway mountains the precise shade of faded harebells.

The highest peak of all, Aorai—and it is these vowels that make the Tahitian language so lovely—has her head in the lead grey and silver of a cumulus cloud; but the Diadem, the pride of Tahiti, with her seven piercing peaks of deep indigo, is flung across with no more than the lightest scarf of that mist which lies thick among the innumerable ravines. The foothills and lower slopes are of that same vivid and indescribable green with—and here is an extravagance of beauty—a broken rainbow arched above the town, small white wooden buildings and toy churches embowered and almost lost in trees; while at either side of the road are more trees, deeply green as the velvet of a hunstman's coat.

I am scribbling as best I can as we rattle along. The smell of guavas, like warm flannel, of mangoes, daturas; of dust and a depth of damp vegetation untouched by the sun; of plants and animals; of sweet ginger flowers and wild gardenia—or tiare, the national flower of Tahiti; of lantana, with the stuffy odour of nettle beds at home in England; of seaweed and stagnant salt water pools; while the sibilant secret hush hush hush of palms, the pat of small waves on the shore is forever in the ears.—From "The Venture Book," by Eleanor Mordaunt. POLITICAL PARADE

By Homer L. Roberts

(California Press Service Writer)

Special to The Truckee Republican

BREACH. A breach between Governor Rolph and the state legislature is widening.

The break originated when the governor vetoed a Mendocino county government bill of his arch-enemy, Senator R. R. Ingels.

Homer Roberts

Upstairs the two houses lost no time in overriding the governor's veto by a two-thirds vote. It was the first time such a thing had occurred in more than 30 years.

The situation was further aggravated when Rolph vetoed the pari-mutuel horse race betting bill. Observers are wondering what the final outcome will be.

TAXES. Another bitter legislative fight is slated over the tax plan of the "Committee of 14."

After weeks of study, this group proposed a means by which the state could raise $44,000,000 or enough to balance the budget.

The program involved increases in bank and corporation franchise taxes, gross receipt tax on public utilities, and a $1.00 boost in the annual fee for automobile license plates.

It was also proposed to divert $17,000,000 a biennium from gas tax revenue to pay highway bond interest and redemption.

REPRISAL. Rheba Crawford Splivalo is said to be making plans for going "on the air" to discuss the treatment the legislature accorded her budget.

The senate refused to increase from $144,000 to $265,000 the amount alloted for the department of social welfare. At the same time, she points out, the same body gave the department of motor vehicles an increase of $1,335,000.

"Isn't the care of our orphans aged and blind as essential as policing the highways?" she asked.

CANDIDATE. Speaker Walter J. Little of the assembly is being mentioned as a possible candidate for lieutenant governor in 1934.

Little declines to discuss the possibility, but his friends say he'd be glad to make the race if political developments the next few months give him a "break."

IRED. Governor Rolph is said to have unloaded his opinion of the state senate at a private conference of senators over the horse racing bill.

Present were Senator Harry L. Parkman and Assemblymen Patrick McMurray and Thomas A. Maloney, San Francisco.

Parkman quoted Rolph as shouting: "The senate is kicking me around like a football. There isn't one of you with guts enough to speak a word for the governor."

Snapshots. E. J. Milne, new superintendent of Whittier state school has started out by "cleaning house" . . . He has ousted a number of assertedly incompetent aides . . Dr. George C. Sabichi, ex-superintendent, is now a physician at Pacific colony . . . Governor Rolph vetoed a bill abolishing the advisory pardon board, of which Frank F. Merriam is a member . . . Despite the act Merriam is on it there is a need for the board Rolph held . . . Final report of the senate committee investigating the Rolph administration is in the printer's hands . . . It is a rather inoffensive document, with much of the publicized "dynamite" missing.

Chimes

Brief, on a flying night,
From the shaken tower
A flock of bells take flight.
And go with the hour.

Like birds from the cote of the gales,
Abrupt—O hark!
A fleet of bells set sails,
And go to the dark.

Sudden the cold airs swing.
Alone, aloud,
A verse of bells takes wing
And flies with the cloud.

Capitol News Letter

(California Press Service)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 4—(CPS)—Voters of California will have at least two propositions to pass judgment upon at the special state election to be called in June.

One, of course, is the question of calling a state convention to ratify repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

The other is the proposed $20,000,000 state bond issue for the relief of unemployment. In case the bond issue is adopted, Governor Rolph has signed a bill setting up the governmental machinery to administer the relief to counties.

BUDGET. The senate increased the state budget sent to it by the assembly by $6,000,000, bringing the total to $252,816,000.

A heated fight was staged in the upper house over a move to increase the budget for the department of social welfare, headed by Mrs. Rheba Crawford Splivalo, from $144,000 to $265,00.

An offer was made by legislators to Governor Rolph that if he would oust Mrs. Splivalo the amount would be increased. The proposition was turned down.

EXTORTION. As if he hasn't troubles enough with state finances, Rolland A. Vandegrift, director of finance, had to deal with an extortionist this week.

Pius Bammer, 55, former shoe repairer, wrote a letter to Mrs. Vandegrift threatening to blind one of her four children if she did not give him $1000.

Vandegrift had the man jailed. Later the prisoner confessed. Fearing others were in on the plot, Mrs. Vandegrift and the children went into hiding.

WATER. The constitutional amendment proposing a statewide water program fell four votes short of adoption in the senate, but is to have another chance on reconsideration.

The proposal received 23 favorable votes, with 27 the number required.

Senators from Northern California, led by Charles H. Deuel, Chico, and W. P. Rich, Marysville, won the fight over San Joaquin valley salons. The question of public ownership played an important part in the debate.

SALARIES. Economy-minded assemblymen, now in the midst of a dispute over cutting state and county salaries, refused twice to cut their own salaries.

The lower house turned down two measures, one proposing to cut assemblymen's salaries from $100 to $90 a month; the other from $100 to $75.

STENOGRAPHERS. In Governor Rolph's office the Long and Short of it are found in two stenographers.

Long happens to be very short, while Short is, well, quite a bit longer than Long.

The girls are Sylvia Long and Ann Short, both pretty popular.

COLLEGE. The University of California succeeded in defeating the bill granting the present seven teachers' college the right to give 4-year courses leading to a bachelor's degree, and changing their names to "state colleges."

ANTICIPATION

Scintillating words in a glittering whirlwind
Of frost painted leaves,
Word Intaglios of amethyst and tourmaline,

Words that are running like water
Over dark stones?
Words that are changing as clouds change,
Shapes that are shapeless and formless,
Ever forming again
In pulsing song?

What shall I find there?
Crystals with sharp-cut facets,
Or rhythms endless, yet ending
In harmonies?

MULES POPULAR AGAIN AFTER A LONG ABSENCE

The lowly mule is staging a comeback in California.

Just as beer and bicycles have returned to public favor after an absence of many years, the mule is finding his way back to farms in nearly every county of the state.

"Once they were referred to as Missouri mules," said A. A. Brock, director of the department of agriculture. "Today, however, most of the mules shipped into California are from Texas."

California's mule population, once relatively the largest of any state in the union, has rapidly shrunk until before the recent revival of shipping, there were only 31,000 mules in the entire state, valued at $858,000.

The number of mules in Nevada county last year was 70, valued at $1,750, according to assessment figures of the state board of equalization.

Just what has caused the re awakening of the mule shipping industry is a puzzle to state agricultural experts, but it is assumed the recent depression has brought about a demand for the useful and durable animals for work on smaller farms.

"Many of California's best farmers have found mules to be cheaper and more effective for certain kinds of work than tractors," one official observed.

"The mule doesn't consume large quantities of gas and oil, he costs little to feed, and is never broken down at a time when he is most needed."

In boom days of California agriculture mules were raised and sold by the thousands. The farmer raised his own feed for the animals, and while harvesting took a little longer, the work was always completed on time and everyone was satisfied.

With the advent of the tractor the mule started fading out of the picture. But now he is coming back

Return of the mule means better prices for hay and feed, the state experts said. It will also bring a revival of the old-time blacksmith shop and a new era for the farmers.

"There are plenty of unemployed mule skinners who are going to get a new deal," it was agreed.

Chill Dusk

Now the tall stepplebush is brown,
The yellow hawkweed earthward bends,
The crying mountain brook goes dry
And slowly the scarlet leaf descends.

This is a night when the frost will lie
Fragile and white on the stubble-ground,
Orion will stalk the eastern sky,
And all the roads will be empty miles around.

SLOW THINKER JUST AS INTELLIGENT AS FAST, TEST REVEALS

BERKELEY—Science has come to the defense of the slow thinker. Pyschological tests just completed at the University of California indicate that speed of mental processes is not correlated with intelligence. The slow thinker is not necessarily dull, nor is the fast worker necessary superficial. The old saying that "John may be slow but he'll get there just the same if you give him time enough," seems to be true.

The amount is sought in a damage suit in behalf of 4-year-old Annette Herbert, injured allegedly by a monkey bite.

It was claimed the owner let the monkey run at large, and that it seized the child's arm and bit her leg.

Nevada County Eats 7,694 Gallons Of Ice Cream During 1932

If some original person ever starts an ice cream eating contest in California, Nevada county ought to produce a team that would walk off with all the prizes.

This is one of the "ice cream eatingest" counties of California according to the state department of agriculture, which has just announced the figures to prove it.

During the year 1932 the county produced a total of 7,694 gallons of ice cream—strawberry, chocolate, vanilla, and every color, flavor and combination known to the modern creamery.

In the entire state of California more than 10,000,000 gallons of the frozen delicacy were produced, the state records showed. Although this figure represented a decrease over the previous year, it is accounted for by the fact that all dairy products, with the exception of butter and cheese, slumped during the depression.

From a modest beginning in 1880 the ice cream industry in California has grown to its present stage until up to last year it was gaining at the rate of 1,000,000 gallons a year.

"Reasons for this tremendous growth," the state experts said, "include improved methods of manufacture, more efficient and wider distribution made possible by the electric storage cabinet, better road conditions, and refrigerated transportation.

"The electric cabinet has made ice cream available in restaurants, roadside stands, summer resorts, boarding houses, ball parks and various places of amusement, but the outstanding reason for ice cream's deserved popularity is the fact that people like good ice cream."

California is the only state at present requiring ice cream to contain a definite amount of food value per gallon, it was pointed out. Another important law requires all ingredients, except fruits nuts and flavors, to be pasteurized This process, the department explains, is not designed to make poor products, but rather to make good dairy products better.

The state has placed 48,688 persons in jobs since July 1, 1932 thru state-operated employment agencies.

Give Your Car Buttermilk When It Goes On A Strike

WATSONVILLE, Cal., May 4—(CPS)—Next time your automobile stalls, give it a shot of buttermilk.

Such is the advice of Harold Foote, local creamery man. He was driving over the Pacheco pass the other day with a load of buttermilk in tow, when he came upon a big truck stalled in the road from an overheated engine.

Samaritan-like, Foote took a can of cold buttermilk and poured it into the radiator. The big truck gave a couple of snorts and moved slowly down the road.

SCARLATINA SERIOUS AS SCARLET FEVER

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 4—(CPS)—Scarlatina is scarlet ever Make no mistake about it.

The warning is by Dr. Joe Smith, Kern county health officer, who called attention of the state board of health to the fact that scarlatina cases must be promptly reported.

"The two terms are merely different terms for the same thing," Dr. Smith said. "Scarlatina may be used just as well in referring to a severe case of the disease as a mild one. Furthermore,, the mild case, often called scarlatina, is in reality the more serious case to control."

County's Delinquent Taxes Total $15,290

Nevada county ranks 36th among the 58 counties of California in percentage of taxes now delinquent, according to a report just compiled for the legislature by State Controller Ray L. Riley.

The amount delinquent in this county is $15,290, of 15 per cent of the first installment, the report showed.

Every one of the 58 California counties showed heavy delinquencies, ranging from .7 of 1 per cent in Mono county, to 48.5 per cent in San Luis Obispo county, the largest in the state. The total amount of taxes due in all counties was more than $12,000,000.

The study was made by the controller to show that most of the counties of the state are in trouble financially, and need relief rather than the imposing of additional burdens by shifting costs from the state to counties.

Fifteen counties of the state are registering general fund warrants and two more are registering school warrants. Eleven counties are in default on bond interest and redemption, while 15 more will be in default on the next payment of bond interest and redemption.

Counties registering general warrants include Alameda, Colusa, Del Norte, Glenn, Imperial, Lassen, Mendocino, Merced, Modoc, Napa, Sacramento, Sierra, Sutter Tulare and Yolo. In addition, Contra Costa and El Dorado counties are registering school warrants.

On April 1, Alameda county had a total of $293,025 in registered warrants, Del Norte had $52,930, and Lassen, $32,423.

Counties which admittedly will be unable to meet their next bond interest and redemption payments are Colusa, El Dorado, Fresno, Gleen, Humboldt, Imperial, Lassen, Madera, Mendocino, Merced, Riverside, San Luis Obispo, Stanislaus, Sutter and Tuolumne.

Los Angeles showed the largest delinquency, with $3,089,895, or 10.9 per cent. San Francisco was next with $1,260,386 or 8.1 per cent, and Alameda third, with $1,108,325, or 10.5 per cent.

S. P. HOTEL BURGLAR TURNS OUT ESCAPED REFORM SCHOOL YOUTH

Word has been received that Jimmy Delaney, who broke into the Southern Pacific Hotel on April 24th, and Johnny Switzer, his accomplice who stood outside the window on guard, escaped from the Preston Reform School at Ione Calif. the day before. on April 23rd. They have been returned t the school by Sheriff George Carter, who had the youths in the county jail awaiting trial.

Delaney forced a window in the Southern Pacific Hotel at 3:30 A. M. on the morning of April 24th and was proceeding to see what he could find, when Night Clerk Felix Kochler captured the burglar. Southern Pacific police officer Albert C. Pfaendler took the man into custody and also captured his accomplice, Switzer, who was outside the window on guard. Both youths insisted that they were hungry and were merely trying to find something to eat, and they both insisted that they had never been in trouble before. Their story did not apparently satisfy Justice of the Peace C Ocker, who bound the youths over to the superior court at Nevada City for trial. Upon investigation it was learned by the police that the boys had escaped from the reform school at Ione only the day before they were captured in Truckee, and that they had anything but a favorable record.

The California State Highway department started last Monday to re-surface and grade the road along Commercial Row from the curbing to the middle highway. This will enable the surface water to run off in the new drainage system recently installed by the highway department. Such co-operation on the part of the California Highway department is much appreciated by the community, and will mean considerable to the local business men along Commercial Row, as it will make it possible for people in automobiles to drive up in front of business establishments and get to the stores in rainy weather, without stepping in mud puddles and deep pools of water.

The new store front which has been under construction for Mrs. Lewis' Store has been completed by Contractor Jack Wolert, and it presents a striking appearance. The new front adds considerable to the west end of Commercial Row. New plate glass show windows have been installed, and Mrs. Lewis will now have one of the most attractive stores in town.

Meadow Lake Union High School News

On Friday, April 28th the Home Economics Department of the Meadow Lake Union High School gave an exhibit in Rossarini's window. Many types of embroidery and sewing work were displayed. There were pretty colored dresses and pillow cases with artistic designs embroidered on them. There was also a display in leather work which included pocketbooks, key cases, gun holders and spurs. There were carved book ends, crochet work, knitting, tempera painted plaques, envelope lined objects such as waste baskets, lamp shades and other designs. The girls taking part in the exhibit were: Bruna Escola, Lorraine Sanders, Anna Giovannoni, Helga Schmidt, Stella Zorich, Glenda Talcott, Norma Stewart and Ida Costa.

Miss Morgan's free hand drawing and also mechanical drawing class displayed their work for the year in the Truckee Shoe Shop window. The display included free hand drawings by Ruth McLeod, a very capable student, and mechanical drawings from Orian Sanders, Earl Edmunds, Heslin Cardinal, Jack Chubbuck and Ray Cavallo.

On the same afternoon a cake contest was held for the pupils of the cooking class to see who was the champion cake baker in the school. The girls in the Home Economics class made the cakes and they were judged by Mrs. Bryant, Mrs. Hofmann and Mrs. White. First prize, which was a blue ribbon presented by the Rumford Co., was won by Helga Schmidt; second, Bruna Esola and third, Anna Giovanoni. The cakes were very good so now no one will be able to say that Truckee's girls are not domestic.

We are very grateful to the Truckee Shoe Shop and to Rossarini's for their hearty co-operation in allowing us to use their windows for our displays.
